

4-H Connects Rockland Youth to Cornell University

4-H Youth Development: An Overview

Young people become confident, mature adults ready for success in today's challenging world through 4-H, the only youth development program with a direct connection to technological advances from research conducted at state land-grant universities. Studies show that six million youth participating in 4-H do better in school, are more motivated to help others, feel safe to try new things, achieve a sense of self-esteem, and develop lasting friendships. Boys and girls of all races and ethnic backgrounds in urban, suburban and rural communities across America and on U.S. military installations worldwide participate in 4-H experiences. 4-H programs are offered through school-based, after-school, camp settings and community clubs.

Contemporary Focus

The fundamental 4-H ideal of practical "learn by doing" experiences encourages youth to experiment, innovate and think independently. Youth learn leadership, citizenship and life skills through more than 1000 projects with topics as varied as rocketry, GPS mapping, DNA analysis, public speaking, photography, nutrition and community service. 4-H offers youth supervised independence, a sense of belonging with a positive group, a spirit of generosity toward others and a wide variety of opportunities to master life challenges.

An American Institution

The 4-H youth development movement began more than 100 years ago. It evolved from rural youth programs created by land-grant college and university researchers and the United States Department of Agriculture to introduce new technology to what was then a country of primarily rural communities. As our nation's economic and demographic profiles become more diverse, 4-H continues to adapt and expand to meet the needs of today's youth.

About the partners...

The mission of Leadership Rockland Inc. is to identify, inform and inspire leaders to better serve our community by increasing their awareness of the many facets of Rockland County. Their goal is to attract and nurture exceptional leaders and to provide opportunities and structure for a continuum of professional development activities which will enhance their knowledge of Rockland County.

The Leadership Rockland Alumni Association is a group of more than 400 community members who have participated in Leadership Rockland. The group includes women and men from the arts, business, industry, labor, law, medicine, education, government, finance, social and civic agencies and many other walks of life. Their goal is to promote the development of leadership among emerging decision makers and community-minded people in Rockland.

Cornell Cooperative Extension of Rockland County is an educational, non-profit organization that helps people improve their families, businesses and communities through an educational process that uses scientific knowledge to address issues and solve problems. 4-H is the youth component of the Extension system. Major 4-H program areas include: leadership, citizenship and life skills.

Dominican College The aim of Dominican College is to promote education excellence, leadership, and service in an environment characterized by respect for the individual and concern for the community. The College is an independent institution of higher learning, Catholic in origin and heritage. Committed to building its programs upon a strong liberal arts foundation, the College maintains a student-centered climate and offers an array of degree opportunities in Liberal Arts and Sciences, Business, and other professions on the graduate and undergraduate levels. Dominican College is dedicated to the principle that its educational programs and services must be both challenging and supportive, distinguished both by high standards and by attention to the needs and potential of the individual student.
